Galadriel (Spirit of Starlight) Lyrics: (From the double CD album, “Cliff Richard yesterday today and forever the top 30 christian lyrics”

My love is turning.
Like a wheel of fire she burns her way.
My love is burning.
She's a light to guide me through the fray.
Galadriel, spirit of starlight.
Eagle and Dove gave birth to thee.
Galadriel, spirit of starlight.
You are my love and earth to me, my love and earth to me.
My love is seeing.
Through unbiased eyes she reads the signs.
My love is searching.
For new life somewhere she's bound to find.
Galadriel, spirit of starlight.
Eagle and Dove give birth to thee.
Galadriel, spirit of starlight.
You are my love and earth to me.
My love and earth to me.

Anna: I tried hard to seek any further information regarding these lyrics, hoping desperately to prove that Cliff didn't MEAN all that was said here, that he was perhaps referring to some larger musical production or theme that I am not aware of. That he was perhaps making a cryptic sort of statement about another issue that I am again, not aware of. Hoping desperately that this is NOT one of Christianity's top songs of today, having personal meaning for the individual in relation to the “Faith” and their own personal experience with, “God”.

Could someone PLEASE help me on this?

On investigating the name “Galadriel”, we find the following (bearing in mind that the name appears NOWHERE in Scripture!):
